Neurodevelopmental Pathway Bassetlaw (NPB) - what to expect

Once you are on the NPB Pathway you and your child will meet a Community Paediatrician (a doctor who specialises in children's health). They will undertake a general development assessment to understand how your child/young person is developing and what things they might find difficult. This will help us to work out the best ways to support your child/young person. The appointment will last about one hour.

The wait time for a general development assessment is currently 16 & a half months from the date we receive your child's/young person's fully completed referral.

Why has my child/young person been referred?

Your child/young person may have been referred for assessment for a number of reasons including:

- Autism
- ADHD
- Developmental delay - (usually diagnosed at the general development assessment appointment)
- Developmental Coordination Disorder (DCD) - (occupational therapist input required)

After the appointment the Community Paediatrician will talk with you about whether your child/young person should continue on the Neurodevelopmental Pathway. If it is decided that this pathway is not the best option, they will suggest other types of support that could help your child/young person, such as help at school, in the community, or at home.

If following the general developmental assessment, it's identified the pathway is the right option for your child/young person, they will be referred for a neurodevelopmental assessment.

Wait times (following, and in addition to, the general developmental assessment wait time of 16 and a half months) are as follows:

- Autism - currently 27 months
- ADHD – currently 21 months

Please note these waiting times are current and can change

Due to the high demand for the service please contact the team on 01909 572 677 or dbth.gdareferrals@nhs.net at your earliest convenience if you no longer require an assessment for your child/young person

When I first came to APTCOO I would have scored myself somewhere below zero. I can now confidently say I am around a seven thanks to the parent carer group, support from APTCOO, my children accessing the after-school group and the sensory rooms.

Hi my name is Beverley, Bev for short.

I have recently joined APTCOO in my new role as a Specialist Practitioner for Children & Families, which I am extremely excited about.

I am a qualified counsellor with specific training in childcare & education, bringing experience of supporting children, young people and adults in various settings, including primary/secondary schools, colleges and the voluntary sector.

I am passionate about encouraging children and young people to reach their full potential, along with promoting positive steps to support mental health & wellbeing.

I am now looking forward to integrating my therapeutic skills into APTCOO's holistic approach to supporting children, young people and families by offering tailored support to meet individual needs.
